

A Christ-Inspired Mission

Matthew 28:16-20

Introduction: In ancient Jerusalem, a disciple was a person who sought out and formally followed a rabbi; he was an apprentice, so to speak, who gleaned knowledge from his teacher, and imitated the attitudes and actions of the one he followed. Over time, though, the term disciple took on a broader meaning and became as much about being as it was about doing.

THE VISION SERIES

1. Is it possible to verbally recognize Jesus as Lord and still have a heart that is spiritually dead (cf. Matt. 7:21-23)? Why or why not?
2. Is every believer called to be a disciple-maker?
3. Missiologist George Patterson contends that when we keep teaching after believers quit obeying, we are actually teaching that it's okay to study and not obey. What do you think he means and do you agree?
4. What are some ways that believers can "make disciples"?
5. Who, specifically, are you discipling? If you're not currently discipling someone, whom might you identify to pursue?
6. How does the reality of hell prompt us to be serious in our disciple-making endeavors?
